

1924. Swimming at the city lakes is the best way to cool off in the summer. By the end of World War I, all beaches on the city lakes were public. Many had docks and lifeguards stations staffed by the Park Board. These divers are at Cedar Lake's South Beach.

(Photo: Minneapolis Park Board Archives. Caption: Bob Glancy.)